MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29 1736.

NUMB. 445

91 445

Monday arrived two Mails from Flanders and one from France.

H B Letters from Madrid say, that on the 8th Instant O. S. the Duke of Villars put on his Hat for the first Time before his Catholic Majesty, as a Grandee of Spain of the first Class.

A Marriage is said to be in Treaty between the Count de Vaultgrenant, the French Ambassador at that Court, and the Dutchess of Orleans; and 'tis reported, that the Count is to be made a Grandee of Spain. The Marquis de Torremueva, is appointed Secretary of the Finances; and Don Francis de Labato, Treasurer General. The first Princess Dowager of Conti is dangerously

The Marriage in Treaty between the King of Sardinia and a certain Princess, is now no longer a Mystery; for the Marriage Contract of the Duke of Lorain's eldest Sister to the King of Sardinia, signed by the Emperor, by his Brother Prince Charles, and by his most Serene Highness himself, has been sent by an Express from the Duke of Lorain at Vienna, to the Dutchess his Mother at Luneville, for her to sign it also, which she did with Tears in her Eyes: They say, that the Duke has, moreover, wrote to her to prepare for her Departure from Luneville, in order to go and reside at Commercy.

They write from Turin too, that the Preparations for this Marriage are hastened; that the Palace of the Sardinian Court is furnish'd with the most Magnificence, and that the King's Life Guards are all new clothed. The Letters from Milan say, that the Distemper among the Cattle still rages so much in Lombardy, that the Ecclesiastical Court has order'd publick Prayers to avert it; and that Robberies are not only very frequent at Milan, but that in one Night there were no less than five Murders committed, for which several Persons have been sent to Prison.

The Letters from Paris, mention the Performance of an extraordinary Ceremony there, which has not been known for almost 70 Years past, viz.

Last Friday se'nnight the Abbe Lercari, the Pope's Nuncio, went to Versailles, where being conducted by the Chevalier de Saintor, the Master of the Ceremonies, he had an Audience of the Queen, and after having complimented her Majesty in the Name of his Holiness, he made her a Present of a Golden Rose adorn'd with Diamonds, of the very same Kind with those Roses which the Pope's consecrate every Year, and which they have long been accustomed to send to Sovereign Princesses and Religious Convents. This Ceremony was perform'd in the following Order.

The Queen went and kneel'd at the King's Praying Desk, attended by Mademoiselle de Clermont, Superintendent of her Household, by the Dutchess de Lannes, a Lady of her Bed-chamber, the Dutchess of Mazarine her Tire-Woman, and 12 other Ladies in rich Apparel adorned with Jewels, by the Count de Telle her Chief Equerry, and by all the Officers belonging to her Court. After the Cardinal de Fleury had said Mass, the Queen advanced towards the Altar near to his Eminency; who then receiving the Pope's Letter from his Nuncio Lercari, deliver'd it to the Queen, who took and kiss'd it, as she did also the Golden Rose, which she then gave to her First Chaplain, who carried it before her Majesty as she returned to her own Apartment, and placed it in her Oratory.

The Canon Lawyers have been at a great deal of Pains to find out the Origin of this Golden Rose. The best Account that seems to have been given of it is to be met with in the second Volume of the History of the Council of CONSTANCE, by that accurate Historian the late Rev. Mr. LENFANT, Chaplain to the Queen of Prussia: And from p. 244 of the Translation printed not long ago for Messieurs Knapp, Rettefworth, Rivington, &c. we have taken what follows for the Information of our Readers.

Theophilus Raynaud, who has treated of it expressly, says, that this is a very ancient Custom in the Church, and that 'tis not easy to trace the Antiquity of it, nor to discover who was the first Author of it. Some say 'twas instituted in the Fifth Century, others in the Ninth; but 'tis certain that the Popes had been long accustomed to consecrate a Rose on the Sunday (call'd) Lætare Hierusalem, three Weeks before Easter. I learn from Henry de Sponde in his Ecclesiastical History, p. 441, that Peter de Blois, who was celebrated in the 12th Century, makes mention of this Custom, and gives mystical Reasons for it in some of his Sermons. James Piccart, a Canon of St. Victor at Paris, in his Notes upon the History of England, written by William of New-bourgh about the End of the same Century, gives us the Extract of a Letter from Pope Alexander III. to Lewis the young King of France, when he sent him the Golden Rose. In Imitation, said this Pope to the Monarch, of the Custom our Predecessors, who carry a Rose of Gold in their Hands upon Lætare Sunday, we thought we could not present it to any Body who better deserv'd it than your Excellence, by reason of your extraordinary Devotion to the Church and our Self.

The same Author tells us of a Sermon which Innocent III. preach'd on that Sunday upon the Mystery of the Golden Rose, wherein the Pope said, that this Rose was composed of Gold, Musk and Balm, and that the Musk added to the Gold by means of the Balm, represents three Substances in Jesus-Christ, viz. the Divinity, Body and Soul.

I have not seen any Author who explains himself more fully upon the Mystical Reasons of the Golden Rose, than William Durand, a School Divine of the 13th Century, who in his Rational Divin. Offic. Lib. VI. Fol. 121, says, On that very Day when we enter Mid-Lent, the Pope, as he goes to Church and returns from it, carries a Rose of Gold, which he shews to all the People, to encourage them to bear up under the Austerities of Lent. For all that Day is set apart to Joy, of which the Rose is an Emblem, both for its Colour, Smell and Taste; its Colour inspiring Joy, its Scent giving Pleasure, and its Taste, Strength. This Rose in the Pope's Hand denotes the Joy of the Children of Israel, at the Sight of their Deliverance from the Babylonish Captivity. The Pope, after having consecrated the Rose, makes a Present of it to some one or other of the greatest Noblemen then at his Court, &c.

Andrew du Chesne tells us in his History of the Popes, Tome II. p. 1468, that Pope Urban V. Anno 1368, gave the Golden Rose to Joan Queen of Sicily, preferably to the King of Cyprus, who was present at the Ceremony; and from that Time began the Custom of sending such Roses to Queens and Princesses.

From what has been now said, it appears that, what was at first no more than a religious Ceremony, became in Process of Time, an Act of Authority, by which the Popes, when they gave the Golden Rose to Sovereigns, acknowledged them for such while those Princes, on their Part, were fond to accept this sort of Homage from the Pope, though in the Main, they had no need of it: And we find in the History of the Reformation of England, that King Henry VIII. gladly received it from the Popes Julius II. and Leo X. tho' he afterwards publicly shook off the Yoke of the Pope's Supremacy.

Having quoted what was necessary to illustrate this Point from that excellent History, we return now to the Advices by the Mails from Flanders.

The Russian Minister at Stockholm, viz. M. Bestucheff, has received News by an Express from Petersburg, that Count Munich was set out from the Lines at Pultava from Moscow, and proposed to be about the 4th of November at Petersburg, where his Stay will not be long, because the Prince of Hesse Homburg has already given Instructions and Orders to make all the necessary Preparations for the Attack of Chocim; and 'tis publicly given out at Petersburg, that the next Campaign will begin early, because all Hopes of an Accommodation with the Porte are vanished.

As to the new Augmentation of the Russian Army, it has been determined in a Grand Council to be 40,000 Men; and considering the Orders given to the Kans of the Calmucks and other Tartars, and to the Chiefs of the Cossacks, to mount all their Men on Horseback for the Czarina's Service; her Army which consisted last Campaign of 160,000 Men, will next Year be above 200,000 strong.

The Letters from Constantinople by Way of Vienna agree, for most Part, that the Peace between the Turks and Persians was concluded with the more Hastie, because Schach Tamas was got out of his Confinement, and had form'd a large Party in Persia, and because the Turks were afraid of the Russians, as well as of the Forces of the Emperor and of the other Christian Powers, who he apprehended were ready to declare against him.

They had a Report at Vienna, that Prince Emanuel of Portugal is arrived at Venice.

The Merchants of Dantzick who borrow'd considerable Sums of the Dutch Bankers for the publick Service after the Bombardment of that City, have made an Agreement with them for two Years' longer Credit, because since that Misfortune, the City has not fully recover'd its Trade.

The Sickness which was in Poland and some Parts of Prussia, being according to all Advices abated, the Passes that were stopp'd up on that Account will soon be set open, and the Navigation of the Weisfel declared free.

The King of Prussia having a Desire to see all his Children together once more, has for that Purpose invited his Four Sons-in-Law to come to Berlin, together with their Princesses; and upon this Occasion, there's to be a Hunting Match upon the Heath of Ruppin and Rheinsberg, which will be by much the more Grand, because all those Princes and Princesses are to be of the Party.

The Letters from Hanover, mention the Orders given for the necessary Relays of Horses, Mules and Carriages, for his Britannick Majesty's Journey to Holland, and those sent to England for the Departure of the Yachts to the Dutch Coast to convey him home.

Most of the Conversation now at Hanover, is about the Baron d'Erffa, heretofore Minister Plenipotentiary at Vienna, who has obtain'd his Majesty's Leave to resign: And 'tis publicly said, that he and all his Family have embrac'd the Romish Religion, and that he will be declared the Emperor's Minister in the Circle of Lower Saxony.

They write from Vienna, that an Express is arriv'd there from the Count de Khevenhuller in Italy, with Advice, that the Spaniards have at length begun to evacuate Tuscany to the Imperialists; and that by another confirm'd from the Prince de Cordona, whose Intelligence comes from his Brother-in-Law the Marquis de Silva, the Commandant at Leghorn, there's an Account, that the Duke de Montemar, upon Advice of the Death of Don Joseph Patinho, was actually sail'd for Barcelona, having left the Command of the Troops to him, the Marquis, and Orders to put them on board also for Barcelona.

The latter End of last Week one Rose Mahoon, a noted Woman of the Town, who sometime ago was tried at the Old Bailey for picking the Pocket of one of the King's Messengers of a Gold Watch but was acquitted, was brought before Colonel De Veil for two Assaults; the Moment she came in, she set up the Irish Howl to so violent a Degree, that she was doubtless heard quite a-cross Leicester Square, and by that Means about 20 Irishmen assembled before the Justice's Door with an Intent to Rescue her, and she got Notice of it by somebody that came in, and thereupon she fell upon the Constable and 3 other Men, 2 of which were Plaintiffs, and beat them so violently, that it was with great Difficulty she was over-power'd and her Hands tied: She gave the Colonel the grossest Language and threaten'd to kill him; but to her great Disappointment, he sent to the Commanding Officer of the Tilt Yard Guard, who was pleased to Order a Serjeant and a File of Musketeers to the Colonel's House, by which Means she was safely convey'd to Gaol, the Guard attending her there, and her intended Rescue prevented.
